

This map displays the distribution of 1,000 randomly generated points within Knox County, Indiana. The points are color-coded to represent their distance from the county seat, Elkhart. The color gradient ranges from blue (closest to Elkhart) to red (farthest from Elkhart). The map shows a high density of points in the central and eastern parts of the county, particularly around Elkhart, and a lower density in the western and southern regions. Major roads and towns are labeled, providing a geographical context for the point distribution.
